Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 1-22 are allowed.

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: The prior art of record fails to teach or suggest the combination of elements. The test tray holding the test bar, which in turn holds the circuit components under consideration, in the context of the whole claim, is not taught or suggested. Roy shows a more common arrangement with a tray 14 of components which must be positioned as a whole. Fishbane shows a similar arrangement in figure 1. Reynolds shows a long boat 40 that is the only example of record that shows components arranged linearly. The boat is not positioned in a tray, or manipulated according to the method recited in claim 1. Fishbane lacks first and second cameras, because Fishbane's boat lacks markings for positioning the boat. Freund teaches that lasers may be tested in bars, before they are broken into individual components, but this is not the method claimed. The instant method deals with individual components. The bar is a holder, not an un-diced row of components. Farnworth shows a rotary tray arrangement. JP 2003148930 shows the more common method of inspecting components, while they are part of the whole wafer.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
